An Interesting Jumble of Philological Deductions Not Contemplated by Max Muller-A Queer List for the Curious close connection indeed between the Turks and the English. Was there not a Turkey company founded under Queen Elizabeth? Have not the English backed up the Turks, right or wrong, ever since? What is th ning of British sympathy for the Bulgarians, but that these are first cousins of the Turks in blood, albeit Christians! If any more proof is wanted have we not the similarity of the Turkish and Turcoman to the English language to prove it? Philologists like Max Muller have warned the world against accidental and apparent verbal resemblances, but this is due only to their jealousy, their desire to keep things among themselves, their resolve to recognize no theories which they do not originate. Yet if this is a free country who are the philologists that they should monopolize any kind of business intellectual exercise! So here is to prove that the English language is an offshoot of the Turkish tongue. Do we not speak of St. Patrick, and is not patrik the Ottoman word for patriarch? and may be St. Patrick wasn't a patriarch! We speak of the eaves of a house, and ev is the Turkish for house. Vertigo is the feeling of falling into an abyss: varta is abyss in Turkish. We say ay when we mean to agree with a man; uy is agree. The Scots use the word ben for the inside of a house; beyn means among, and is not that as clear as could be wished? Bol means ample, hence bowl, sufficient for a drink; jewab, pronounced jawb, ica was invented. Batn is the abdomen; and surely batten, to feed till full, must have thus originated. Bile is safra, and saffron is the color of bile-nearly. Gem is a morsek and is not a gem a morsel! Mr. Sullivan now and again puts up his darbies and gives his adversary darba, a blow. If there were no women in the world there would not be so much kissing; hence we note the identity of kiss with kis, a daughter. Busse is a kiss, and we know of the London girl who shocked a Boston lady by taking a 'bus right in the street. AMONG IRISH WORDS.

Now let the Irish have a turn. Ulu in Turkish means dead, and what does the Irish keen begin with but Ulalone? Dere is valley, and every place called wholly or partly Derry in Ireland is in a valley. Bog is Turkish for deluge, and is not a bog a place where there was a deluge and where there is now turfan —another word for deluge—or turf? Kilisse is church, and do they not speak of Columb kill, or St. Columbia's, church? So in the Scotch, bittock is a moiety, as they say, "a mile and a bittock:" but bichook is Turkish for a half. Bit is end, and what is a bit but a piece off an end? Both Ireland and Scotland grow plenty of oats-as Dr. Johnson said, "food in Scotland for men, in England for horses," and ot is Turkish for forage. If all this is not enough there is more in stock. Mohammed prohibits intoxication; ich is drink, and hiccup-or cockney, 'icchup-the result of drink. The English accuse the Americans of corrupting the common language by using the imperative "git" for go, but the Turk says to a beggar git, because is the imperative of gidelim, to go. An Osmanli boy calls his grandfather dede, and an Osmanli uncle calls his son neve When an Ottoman girl is chidden she holds down her head, bash, and is abashed; when she is wooed she does the same with her bash, and is bashful. When she gets married she probably has to do the cooking-that is, boiling or hashlan; bence, no doubt, hash; and how many American dyspentics wish the Turks had kept the word and the thing at home! But if she becomes a good cook she is called ashii-that is, apparently, of the ashe surmised that this is an empty guess or bosh, for bosh means empty, just as mum means wax-that is, "close as wax"-and serin means cool, whence in warm countries "all serene" is similarly applied. Cach means es cape, not, as might be supposed, arrest; but this is the way of the world in torturing meanings; and kedi or keti is a cat, not a kitten, and cawka is a fight, not an assembly of politicians. But doldur is a load, as when one is in the doldrums; kodja is an old man, or elder, not a codger, and kabagi is a guard, and not a cabbage. Turkish soldiers get but a portion even of their meager pay, hence pay means portion. Chok is much, or very, and do not we in the vulgarity of youth say chok full?

AN ADDITIONAL LIST. When a boy is masticating candy, a man a plug, or a girl gum, they chine, that is, may stand on the kuvi, or coast, of Coney Is land, and never dream they are on a quay, and get into hal, or condition, thus becoming hale. They may go into the country and make hay for the haywanat, or cattle, not that any Turk bothers himself about such a thing, swing the cattle can feed of themselves. They may dress in isscarlet or purple and go out in the merry month of May, so called becan's the sky is then mai, or light blue. The mas fusy be a national guard and fall into rank-renk, the colors. When he comes home he may give his child a doll, or dol, which she will soon find to be "something filled." If on his return he tells a fish story his wife may talk Turkish to him and say tut, or even toot toot! that is, consider, have a care of your reputation for veracity. If he is a Roman Catholic or an Anglican he will have some regard for church law or canon law, kanun ing Turkish for law, though the word was not adopted from the Turks by the councils of Nice or Chalcedon, near as those places are to Constantinople. It may be hoped the student is now ver, or in accord, yea verily, that he has got nearly to the dib, or bottom, of the question, and has not merely dibbled in the fruitful soil; that he will not take diger, another view, and thus digress, but will aim at the merkez, or center, and thus make his mark as a philologer. But it is not well to have too much study at once, so it is time to chek, or pull up. And if Mr. Max Muller, or any gentleman of like views, who hold that inasmuch as English is an Aryan language and therefore can have nothing in common with a Turanian tongue, will only undertake to show that an Ameri can citizen's birthright should include a knowledge of Sanskrit, taught in the primary schools, then, and only then, can the theory of the descent of English from Turkish, amply illustrated above, be negatived by experts, There is one conclusive proof which has been deliberately kept to the last. The Turks call a siege or field gun "top"-because it is round! Skeptics can now sit down .- New York Times

I suppose that the least harmful method of smoking is the use of a clean pipe with mild tobacco-a pipe that has not absorbed the nicotine. The harmfulness of a pipe comes from its having absorbed a great quantity of nicotine, so that you are constantly taking more or less of it into the system. The cigni would come next in favor. Of course, the stronger a pipe is the more nicotine there is in it, and the more nicotine you have the greater is the chance of injuring your sys-The chief constituents of tobacco smoke are water, carbonic acid, carbonic oxide in a state of gas and nicotine. When a man smokes too much the excess produces redness and irritation of the stom ach, and the membrane secretes irregularly and does not produce the due amount of gas tric fluid. Hence, digestion is interfered with. That is the first phase. After a while the stomach gets into such a condition that it tolerates this state of existence, so that there is not the same nausea produced in an old smoker that we find in a younger smoker. Whether smoking is good for a man depends on his organization. I do not think that smoking is ever really beneficial for a nervous man. Then, again, much depends on how much a man smokes, and when he smokes. There are certain men who, when they are tired, when their nervous system has been on too great a strain, will smoke one or eigars; they will become quiet. The nervous man should not smoke at all. ADAMS EXPRESS COMPANY.

Letter from the Assistant Foreman of the Delivery Department-A Subject in Which Thousands are Deeply Concerned.

About five years ago I suffered from painful urination and great pain and weakness in the lower part of my back, pain in the limbs, had taste in the outh, disgust at food, and great mental and bodily depression. I live at 241 York street, Jersy City, and on arriving home one night I found a copy of the Shaker Almanac that had been left during the day. I read the article, "What is this Disease that Coming Upon Us?" It described my symptoms and feelings better than I could if I had written a whole book. My trouble was indeed "like a thief in the night," for it had been stealing upon me unawares for years. I sent for a bottle of Shaker Extract of Roots, or Seigel's Syrup, and before I had taken one-half of it I felt the welcome relief. In a few weeks I was like my old self. I enjoyed and digested my food. My kidneys soon recovered tone and strength, and the urinary trouble vanished. I was well. Millions of people need some medicine simply to et on the bowels. To them I commend Shaker Extract in the strongest possible terms. It is the gentlest, pleasantest, safest and surest purgative in this world. The most delicate women and children may take it. One point more: I have all the more onfidence in this medicine because it is prepared by the Shakers. I may claim to be a religi myself and I admire the Shakers for their zenl, conistency and strict business integrity. What they make may be trusted by the public. W. H.
